My personal identity as a designer is intricately woven into every facet of my branding. Through the fusion of bold, bubbly type and meticulous manipulation, my brand identity and letter mark exhibit a distinct vibrancy and energy. The fusion of dark shades of warm colors like pink and orange not only radiates friendliness but also underscores a sense of professionalism and innovation. Central to my brand is the symbolic representation of a butterfly, embodying my continual evolution and growth both as an individual and as a designer. Just as the butterfly undergoes transformation, I am constantly refining my craft and embracing new challenges, ensuring that my work remains dynamic and ever-evolving.

Our Mission

World Hunger Relief is "a Christian organization committed to the alleviation of hunger around the world." Its mission is to "train individuals in a holistic ministry that equips them to work with communities in developing sustainable farming techniques, educate those with an economic abundance on methods of conserving and sharing resources, and participate in local and international sustainable development programs."

The farm exists to be a learning laboratory that equips interns with sustainable farming techniques and community development skills in Christian agricultural work, inspires empathy and compassion for those who live without adequate food, and refines our work by engaging in local and international partnerships.

As an active farm, WHRI is committed to sustainable practices that nourish people, communities and the land. As an educational farm, WHRI is committed to demonstrating viable small-scale farming techniques and maintaining facilities hospitable to learning. As a non-profit that exists by and for our community, WHRI is committed to focusing on finding and sharing solutions for today’s many issues.

“We envision a robust, resilient, and regenerative food system that prioritizes local agricultural production, equitable access to healthy food, and ecological sustainability."

ZSL London Zoo has launched a series of adult-focused events that will hopefully get visitors to see the zoo in a new light, and think of the zoo as more than just a place you take the kids to on the weekend. The Zoo Nights are being promoted with a campaign, the identity for which was designed and illustrated by Ella Hext. All type was not created or manipulated by Ella Hext.
